Fred. Olsen Cruise Lines makes it even easier to enjoy an 'Around UK' getaway

Since a proportion of the UK population does not hold either a valid passport or photo card driving licence, Fred. Olsen Cruise Lines has amended its policy to widen the appeal of an 'Around UK' cruise, to include anyone who can produce other acceptable forms of photographic identification at Check-in.

Fred. Olsen will now accept the following forms of photographic identification on 'Around UK' cruises only, not including any cruises calling into Eire (Republic of Ireland):

- Passport

- EU national ID card
- Driving licence
- Council-issued bus pass / travel card
- Firearms licence
- VALIDATE UK card

These forms of photographic identification ensure that Fred. Olsen continues to meet its own company policy of being able to verify the identity of each guest, and comply fully with the requirements of the International Ship and Port Facility Security ('ISPS') Code.

Nathan Philpot, Sales and Marketing Director for Fred. Olsen Cruise Lines:

"One of our most popular range of cruise holidays is our 'Around UK' voyages, where guests can experience the many delights of England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland, in a simple, stress-free way.

"We are now making it even easier for that proportion of the UK population who do not have a passport or photo card driving licence to enjoy our in-depth UK cruise experience, and get the chance to visit UK towns and cities that our smaller-sized ships can access."

In 2015, Fred. Olsen's revised policy will apply to the following 'Around UK' voyages:
