

Fred. Olsen Cruise Lines has been crowned 'Best Cruise Line for No-Fly Cruise Holidays' at the British Travel Awards 2022 after winning the gold award.

More than 610,000 votes were cast by over 300,000 voters as part of this year's British Travel Awards, with the winners announced yesterday evening in a ceremony held at Evolution London in Battersea Park, hosted by TV personality and broadcaster, Alison Hammond.

The accolade follows on from Fred. Olsen Cruise Lines being named 'Favourite Ocean Cruise Line', another consumer-voted category, at the Wave Awards 2022 earlier this month.

Clare Ward, Director of Product and Customer Service at Fred. Olsen Cruise Lines, said:

"We're delighted that the hard work and dedication of our team has been recognised by our guests.

"Our regional UK departure ports allow us to offer some fantastic hand-crafted, no-fly itineraries, from an around the world tour from Liverpool or an exploration of South America and the Antarctic from Portsmouth, to a short Easter break on the picturesque River Seine from Southampton- our no-fly cruises offer something for everyone to enjoy.

"Winning gold at such a prestigious award really is testament to everyone within our team, from our wonderful crew on board our ships, to those based in our office - it truly is all about the people."
