Fred. Olsen Launches New Online Photography Competition

Fred. Olsen Cruise Lines has just launched another of its popular photography competitions, aimed at customers past and present.

The site includes examples of good and bad photography, and tips on how to take a really good picture, along with some entries from previous competitions. Entrants are invited to submit pictures featuring Fred. Olsen ships, destinations, or both, and the competition is open until 31st December 2009. First prize is a Casio Camera, second prize a Casio watch, and third prize is an on board spend of £75.00 for the winner to use on a Fred. Olsen cruise.

Shona Michell, who runs the Fred. Olsen website, said: "We know that many of our customers are keen photographers and some are very talented, so we are really looking forward to seeing this year's entries. Who knows, your latest holiday snaps could be prize-winners!"

NB: - Entrants should note that by submitting their photographs they are giving Fred. Olsen Cruise Lines copyright to those images.
